PEOPLE'S THEATRE FESTIVAL

As part of the 4th annual People's Theatre Festival, there will be two free days of activities held at Fort Mason Center, Buildings B & C, on September 26 & 27. The Festival is a multi-ethnic event which was inspired by the work of the WPA's Federal Theatre Project of the 1930s and is trying to create the spirit of a theatre that speaks to and about people not usually represented in most mainstream commercial productions. Workshops on storytelling, playwrighting and physical movement will be given by groups including the Traveling Jewish Theatre and Provisional Theatre from Los Angeles, El Teatro de la Esperanza from Santa Barbara, and Dell' Arte Players Co. from Blue Lake. Afternoon performances will include the Asian American Theatre Co., Make-A-Circus and Bob Carroll. Forums for the Festival will include: a discussion concerning community access to cable television; the role of Cultural Democracy in the 80s as seen by Washington, D.C.-based Neighborhood Arts Program National Organizing Committee's Arlene Goldbard and Don Adams; an overview of the governments Federal Theatre Project and the Workers Labor Theatre of the 1930s; and a dialogue on Experimental and People's Theatre, moderated by Misha Berson. There will also be evening performances and a display of Federal Theatre Project photographs and posters at the People's Theatre Coalition in Building B. For more information call the People's Theatre Coalition at 776-8999.

MARITIME HERITAGE WEEK

Mayor Dianne Feinstein has proclaimed the week of September 6-12 "San Francisco Bay Maritime Heritage Week," a celebration of the importance of the sea and those who have gone to sea or worked in sea-related occupations, the sailors, the fishermen, the longshoremen, and the immigrants, to the development of the Bay Area.

The events, sponsored by the Maritime Humanities Center, begin with a Saturday night concert, September 5th at the Center for World Music. The performers will be English shantyman Stan Hugill, Jon Bartlett and Rika Ruebsaat (sea songs of the Pacific Northwest), Jose Gutierrez (Mexican fishing songs), and the Chinese Instrumental Ensemble (Chinese fishing and immigration songs).

The festivities continue on Sunday and Monday, September 6 & 7 (Labor Day Weekend) with the 3rd annual Festival of the Sea at the National Maritime Museum and Historic Ships. Authentic and knowledgeable performers of sea-related music from up and down the west coast and around the world will be performing, including Jimmy Collier (West Indian shanties and songs of Black longshoremen), Matteo Casserino and Gino Di Michele (music of Italian fishermen), Sam Hinton (American folksongs of the sea), Louis Killen (sea songs of the British Isles) and Inge Wessels (German sea songs).

Also there will be demonstrations of nautical arts, such as sail-making, model boatbuilding, dugout canoe carving, and net-mending; readings of sea literature; films; lectures; oral history panels; exhibits; and children's programs at which youngsters can hear sea stories, learn to tie knots, and sing sea shanties while heaving and hauling on the schooner C.A. Thayer.

For information on the events call the Maritime Humanities Center at 771-3488/9.

ASIAN AMERICAN JAZZ

The 1st Annual Asian American Jazz Festival will be happening at Fort Mason on September 12 & 13. The festival will be the first major event dedicated to the history of Asian American participation in jazz. Presented by the Kearny Street Workshop & Fort Mason Foundation the proceeds will benefit the Manilatown Senior Service Center.

The involvement of Asian Americans in the jazz scene stretches from swing thru bebop to the new music of today. The music & groups playing represent that participation in the music. On Saturday pianist Rudy Tenio will join forces with saxophonist Randy Senzake, Bruck Lock & friends. The United Front with Mark Izu, George Sams, Lewis Jordan & Anthony Brown continue the bill and Russell Baba with Eddie Moore complete the evening.

Sunday's bill begins with Guapo Lee Ensemble. Lee, the 13 year old son of saxophonist Gerald Oshita, & 12 year old tenor saxophonist Joshua Shedroff lead off this talented young quartet. Next, Izu/Collins/Yamazake trio will show a montage of bass and Bb Clarinets that will take you from Bechet to Dolphy. Capping off the evening is the Makoto/Fuji/Shido quartet. They have written & played with Pharoah Sanders, Julian Priester & Babatunde. Performances begin at 7:30pm in Fort Mason's Conference Center, Building A. For ticket information call 441-2458.
